

Poverty and Geography: The Myth of Racial Segregation

Submitted by AA [1] on 8 September, 2014 - 10:00

From innovation springs prosperity. This is the economic geography of today. Places with a high concentration of college degrees also boast the highest per capita incomes. But many metros aren't so fortunate. Ironically, Americans are moving the wrong way. read more [2]

Broadcast

by: http://feedproxy.google.com/~r/sustainablecitiescollective_allposts/~3/NNxU4hVPU... [3]

Architect Africa Network Search: