

PE, Cape and Joburg Insist Drinking Water Is Safe After Listeriosis Scare

Submitted by AA [1] on 19 January, 2018 - 12:41

The cities of Johannesburg, Cape Town and Port Elizabeth on Thursday insisted that drinking water in the metropolitan areas was safe for consumption, following a surge in Listeriosis outbreaks countrywide.

On Tuesday, a total of 764 Listeriosis cases were registered in South Africa, including 212 in Johannesburg, 47 in Cape Town and nine in Port Elizabeth.

Port Elizabeth metropolitan spokesperson Mthubanzi Mniki criticised "unfounded allegations" that its tap water was one of the causes of the Listeriosis outbreak in the city.

READ MORE: <https://www.news24.com/SouthAfrica/News/pe-cape-and-joburg-insist-drinki...> [2]

Architect Africa Network Search: